The Caswell Building is a six-story red brick building on the northwest corner of West Jones Street and North McDowell Street in the state government complex in downtown Raleigh. It is one full block west of the Legislative Building, adjacent to the Administration Building.

Do not park in the parking lots directly across Jones Street from the Caswell Building. That is assigned paid parking for state employees from several agencies, and there are no visitors' spaces, even for community college personnel and other state employees visiting us on business.

Please park in the Visitors' Area of the State Government Parking Lot a block and a half north of the Caswell Building near the corner of Lane and McDowell Streets or in metered spaces on the street. The parking deck at McDowell and Lane is open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. There is a small hourly charge. There is also some visitors' parking across from the Archives Building at 109 East Jones Street, two blocks east of the Caswell Building.

The Department of Environmental and Economic Resources maintains an excellent map of the state government area of downtown Raleigh. Buildings are listed alphabetically.
